Dear educator,

We are very proud to have been the custodians of Tapestry, the Childhood Education Platform, since its inception as the first online learning journal in 2012. As a truly innovative education service, it was taken up with huge enthusiasm from day one by our customers (or 'weavers' as they termed themselves) and their feedback, suggestions and pleas for additional functionality have been no small part of the ongoing innovation and creativity that guide our incredible team to this day.

We hope you enjoy reading this description of what we believe Tapestry could do for your school; we hope it persuades you to take out a no commitment trial, and we really hope that the trial inspires you to become another of our valued customers and to weave Tapestry into your relationship with your parents. We are confident that if you need any help or have any questions, our wonderful customer support team will impress you with their comprehensive knowledge and commitment.

With very best wishes,

Dr Helen Edwards and Steve Edwards

Building Strong Family Partnerships

At Tapestry, we understand that family engagement plays a crucial role in the academic, emotional, and social development of children across the world. This partnership is vital in international schools, where children arrive from diverse backgrounds and under varying circumstances, some as boarders, others for just a term or two, and many for longer stays.

Tapestry provides practical tools for building meaningful partnerships with families, so you can develop trust and create a support system that extends beyond the classroom, helping children feel nurtured, motivated, and empowered to thrive.

The next best thing to being there

Share the learning that happens at school with everyone at home - from parents to grandparents, no matter the distance.

Connect families far and wide with photos, videos and audio about their child's experiences. With Tapestry you get unlimited media uploads and unlimited family profiles, so everyone can be involved.

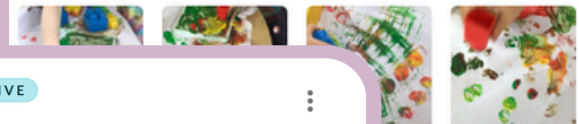

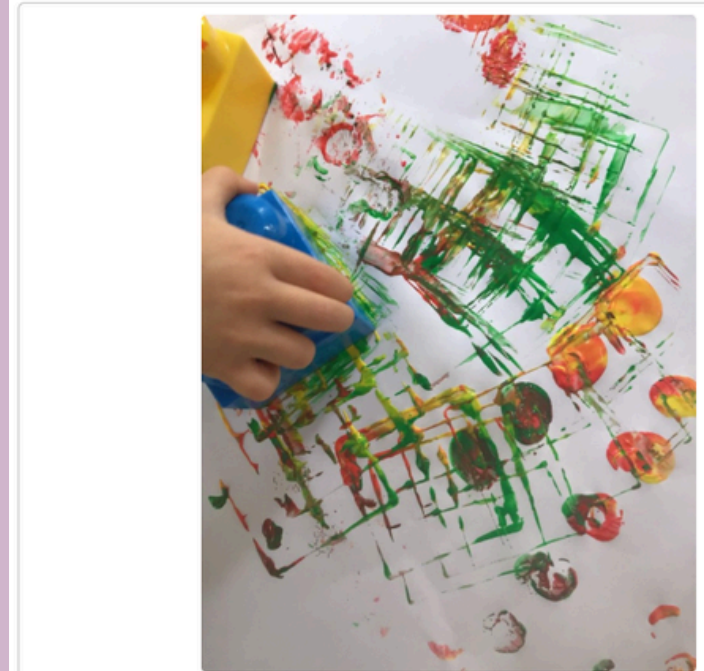

I just love the product. As a parent it's the best thing getting those photos each day of your child and the assessing and recording is great from my point of view! I recommend your product to everyone.

Building Strong Family Partnerships

Providing Pastoral Care of the Highest Quality

Your International School is a diverse learning hub of staff, children and families from around the world. Tapestry can help you develop an inclusive, supportive, and high-achieving learning environment with tools that bring everyone together to ensure the well-being and progress of children in your multi-cultural and often changing community.

Support children's well-being

Many of the children in your school are probably living away from their home countries, cultures, and sometimes even their families.

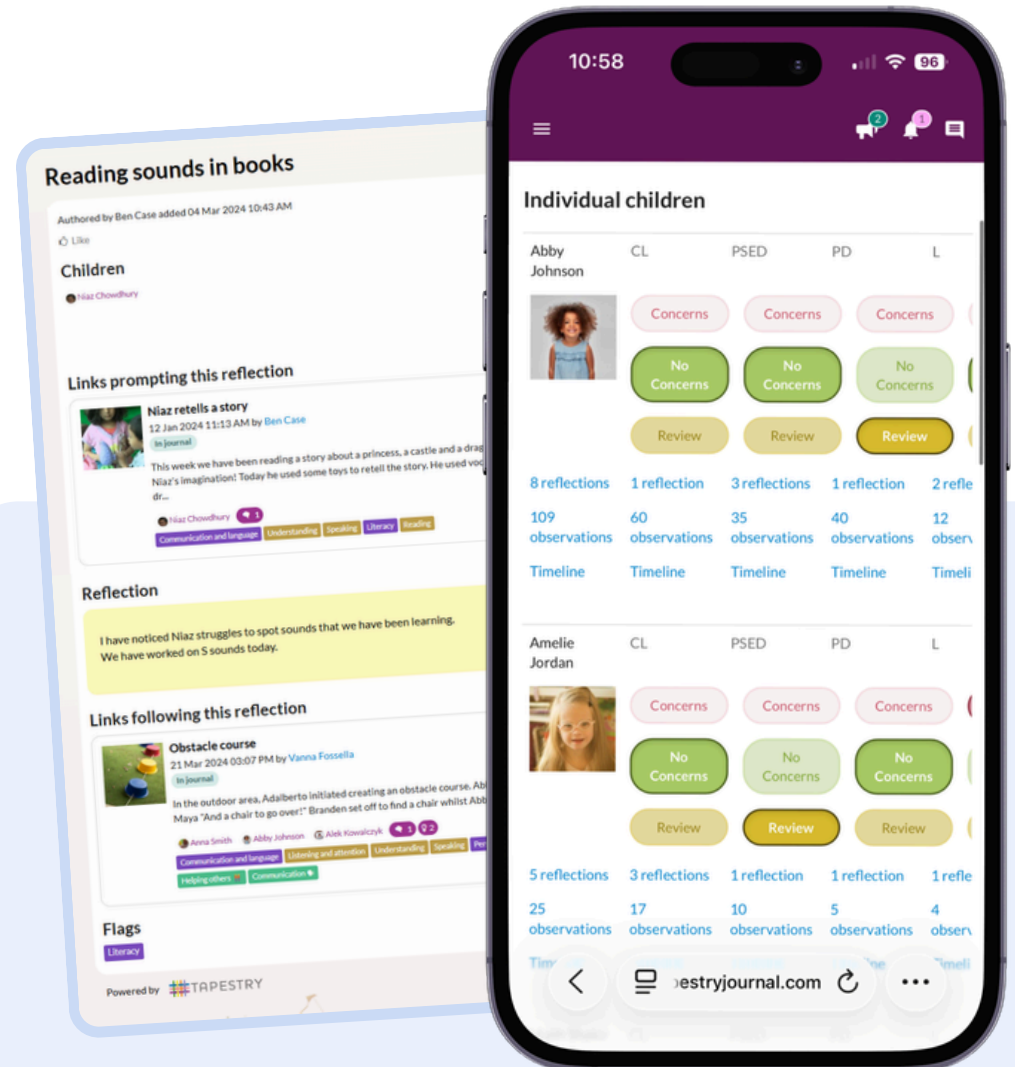

With Tapestry you can create reflections on the unique emotional, social and learning needs of each child, and use them to inform your provision to help every child thrive.

Create a safe and inclusive environment

Learn about every child and their culture by encouraging families to share photos and videos on Tapestry of home experiences. Design and share activities to connect home and school, letting children know they are at the heart of their learning and development.

Provide stability in a transient setting

Carefully curate an online profile of each child, so you can learn about their interests and strengths, easing transitions and ensuring you're ready to offer support however they need it.

Championing Child-centred Practice and Pedagogy

Tapestry has been carefully designed to support a child-centred approach, helping you to place the needs, interests, and well-being of children at the heart of every learning opportunity.

The original learning journal that grows with each child

Reduce barriers of engagement and provide an open communication channel with instant and secure messaging tools designed to build trust and keep in touch.

Give children agency over their learning

Tapestry's groundbreaking Child Login gives children the ability to access their journal themselves, encouraging motivation, self-assessment, and developing metacognitive language and understanding. Watch children find their voice in their own learning and give educators a tool to provide meaningful feedback.

The link between the cycle of planning, teaching and assessment

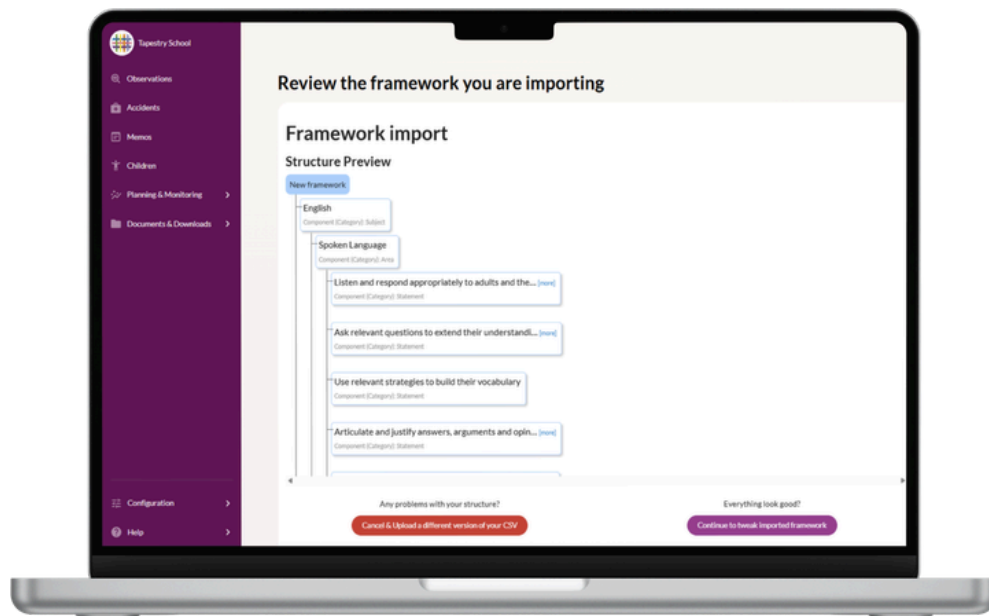

Follow children's interests and strengths, keep an eye on attainment and achievement, notice gaps in learning, and record the impact of your provision with Tapestry.

Tapestry allows you to follow the British curriculum and assess your children against the EYFS (including Development Matters and Birth to 5 Matters guidance), ELGs, IEYC, and National Curriculum in England.

Personalised learning for a global future

Design and upload your unique curriculum, and tailor learning to specific goals and individual needs, helping every child progress at their own pace.

With the ability to create bespoke flags, you can organise your observations and assessments, and celebrate qualities such as collaboration, resilience and kindness, preparing children to thrive in an interconnected world.

Woodlands Nursery School

Where it all begins - the Early Years

Amity School Dubai Case Study

Amity School Dubai have around 800 children in their Foundation Stage (CBSE PreK – Grade 2) and they have been using Tapestry for two years. Parita Patira is Head of the Foundation Stage and introduced the use of Tapestry with staff, parents and children.

Supporting parental engagement in an international school

A strong and enriching curriculum is an important aspect of Amity schools. At Amity School Dubai, they recently implemented the National Curriculum Framework for Foundational Stage (NCF). They use Tapestry to support their implementation of the NCF and to evaluate its impact at their international school.

They also post goals on Tapestry for every child, reducing documentation for teachers and streamlining everything by using one platform.

Using flexible features creatively

One of the main Tapestry features used by staff and families is Observations. Educators use a mixture of individual and group observations, and they add a personalised note for a child's family and their online journal.

Staff use the Activities feature to share ideas for activities to do at home at specific times of the year in their international school community, for example as part of their summer enrichment programme for children.

Designed as a teacher-parent communication tool, the team at Amity Dubai use Tapestry's Memos feature as a reading log. Books are shared from school to home, and families record their feedback on how the reading at home is going via Memos.

Designing a curriculum and monitoring children's progress

Educators at Amity School Dubai encourage families to use Tapestry right from the start. They fill in the About Me section which helps staff to get to know and understand the children better. Parents input continues as they share learning that happens at home adding photos/video to their child's Tapestry online journal.

At the same time, educators regularly update parents about experiences children are having at school, via Tapestry. This gives parents a consistent insight into classroom activities and their child's learning and development. And because families are aware of their child's progress, staff no longer get emails from parents asking how well their child is doing.

Once parents start using Tapestry, there is no looking back because they love it. We are very happy to see this kind of involvement of the parents, and this wouldn't have been possible without Tapestry being there. I can't express in words how grateful we are we came across Tapestry.
